

Staging a nearly four-hour filibuster, a South Carolina Senate Democrat on Wednesday delayed a vote on proposed budget cuts to two state universities in retaliation for selecting gay-themed books for their summer reading programs. Although the Senate had been expected to resume debate on Thursday, that never happened. Instead, the Charleston Post and Courier reports [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/05/as-filibuster-delays-fun-home-vote-potential-compromise-emerges/>