

The school board in the Japanese city of Matsue has restricted student access to Keiji Nakazawa's Barefoot Gen, the autobiographical story of a six-year-old boy who survived the Hiroshima bombing. The board ruled that the book will remain in elementary and junior high school libraries but only teachers will have access to it; students will [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/08/barefoot-gen-removed-from-school-library-in-japan/>