

Conventions | The Phoenix Convention Center was evacuated Thursday, the first day of Phoenix Comicon, after a fire alarm was triggered by a damaged heat sensor (something similar occurred during last year's event). Attendees were allowed back in to the venue after about 30 minutes. The convention, which in 2013 drew a record 55,000 people [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/06/comics-a-m-phoenix-comicon-disrupted-by-malfunctioning-fire-alarm/>