

I wonder whether the Harry Potter formula has supplanted the Tolkien formula as the most relatable template for Joseph Campbell's "hero's journey." Consider this: At the time of The Lord of the Rings, most of the world's population lived in rural areas. That's not the case today. Who's going to be a more relatable character [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/08/in-blindsprings-a-princess-has-be-come-unstuck-in-time/>