

Turns out, real-life superheroes have the same problems as their fictional inspirations. First there was Phoenix Jones and his Spider-Man-esque contentious relationship with Seattle police, and now a group of costumed crimefighters in East Jordan, Michigan. are embroiled in their own Civil War. The Detroit News has shared the story of Petoskey Batman (Mark Williams, pictured [...])

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/02/michigan-superheroes-threatened-by-the-villainy-of-in-fighting/>