

U.K. publisher Nobrow has announced it will close its London store after three and a half years to better concentrate on publishing and to expand its office space. "Our desire is to focus on our core business, developing and producing the best content in visual publishing," reads a statement on the Nobrow website. "With the increasing [...]"

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/07/nobrow-to-close-its-brick-and-mortar-store-this-month/>