

It's been about five years since Comic-Con International attendees and organizers were caught off-guard by "Camp Twilight," the tent-and-sleeping-bag city that began taking root outside the San Diego Convention Center days before the Hall H presentation. Although the final installment of the Summit Entertainment franchise was released in 2012, there's always a possibility that another [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2014/07/sdcc-if-you-plan-on-lining-up-early-for-comic-con-read-this/>