

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=28301&t=Big_iTDKRi_Announcement_Coming_Soon

Nothing has kept the rumor mill churning like Chris Nolan's upcoming threequel, The Dark Knight Rises. Who are the villains? Who will Tom Hardy Play? What story will it follow? Speculation and outright fabrication have run riot on the interwebs for months. But now we might be looking at some official news soon enough. La Times' Geoff Boucher Tweeted the following from The Golden Globes Sunday night.. "At Golden Globes last night I ended the night in the valet line behind Chris Nolan and Emma Thomas and chatting about big things to come" Now, that doesn't necessarily mean too much taken on it's own but Boucher seems to be Nolan's go to guy when it comes to revealing details. He broke the news of the official title, as well as the fact that The Riddler will play no part in the story. So if he knows something, it's likely we soon will too. Also,