

In an MTV News exclusive, Stephen McFeely and Christopher Markus, screenwriters of Marvel's much-anticipated Captain America: The First Avenger movie, briefly share their favorable moments from the first full-length teaser trailer. So, tell me your first thought on seeing the new trailer, guys... CHRISTOPHER MARKUS: "You forget when you're constantly dealing with parts of these things that it's going to become this whole thing you're emotionally invested in. [Seeing the trailer] was the first time when I was like, "Oh, this is a real movie! It's not just the scene I have to write today!" It sort of sweeps you up and along with it" I'm sure you've seen this footage a lot already, but were there any surprises for you when you first saw it? STEPHEN McFEELY: "I'm very surprised that now Mr. Stark makes people tingle. It's kind of nice. Without giving too much away, we've lived with that for so long, and

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=34013&t=iCaptain_Americai_Screenwriters_Share_Favorable_Moments_From_Teaser_Trailer