

A huge thank you to our friends over at Newsarama for the following. Be sure to head on over there for even more details on the new Daredevil series. "It's not like we're giving him a new suit or anything like that," Waid said. "The biggest thing we're doing is playing up what it's like to be in Matt's head." Wacker said that Waid once put it, "Matt has no fear at this point, because nothing else can happen to him." "We wanted to give him a win every once in a while," Waid said. Wacker said the book will have a bit of a location change. "When I look at Hell's Kitchen now, I say, 'Mission accomplished, Matt!'" Wacker said that "all of New York City" will be a character in the book. "Their friendship has gone through more than most friendships in the Marvel Universe, and probably will continue to," Waid said of Matt's relationship
