

Director Duncan Jones was in London doing the Q&A for his latest film Source Code, and he was also asked about that rumor if he had any meetings with the studio about directing The Wolverine, starring Hugh Jackman. Harry Knowles from Ain't It Cool News received a interesting message about that. "Just got a message from one of my followers on Twitter - about a SOURCE CODE Q&A in London that Duncan Jones did, where he stated that he has a meeting with Fox coming up regarding the possibility of him taking over WOLVERINE in lieu of Aronofsky's departure. That said, apparently the MOON & SOURCE CODE director feels like he would rather do his own original sci fi script next, but is taking the meeting more or less to explore options and be polite." While Jones was talking about that original sci-fi project for awhile now, if he likes the script for

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=34993&t=Duncan Jones Getting Closer To Direct iThe Wolverinei>