

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GulfCoastAvengers/news/?a=28262&t=EDITORIAL_Are_We_Just_Picky_Little_Bastards

They never get it right, do they? Those damn money grubbing studios think they can throw anything on screen that even remotely resembles our heroes and we should all be pleased. That's what it seems like sometimes. We have all thought that the heroes we're seeing have been raped, revamped and re imagined to the point of being unrecognisable, right? Well, let's step back and look at that notion for just a minute. I have noticed that even those of us that are the staunchest supporters for a costume change (for the sake of argument) in the new Spider-Man film, have at some point, complained about a goofy costume change in yet another movie somewhere along the line. That's right, many who are calling the haters of the current costume change crazy, were themselves, a hater somewhere down the line, maybe it was the updated THOR duds. It could quite possibly be