

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=28057&t=FX_Gives_An_Update_On_TV_Adaptation_Of_iPowers

At the TCA (Television Critics Association) press tour today, IGN TV reported Eric Goldman asked FX's president, John Landgraf for an update on the adaptation of Brian Michael Bendis and Michael Avon Oeming's comic book series, and here is what he had to say in full. For those of you that don't know, Powers is set in a world where superpowers are relatively common but not mundane. It follows the lives of two detectives, Christian Walker and Deena Pilgrim, police officers in a Homicide department devoted to cases that involve "powers" (people with superpowers). "I'm really excited about what's going on with Powers now. It's funny, it's taken a long time. It's really hard I think to adapt a graphic novel into a successful television show. I realize they did it with Walking Dead, at least in the first six episodes they had on the air, but there have been very few