

We all remember the 1990 film version of 'Dick Tracy', and there are very few people who disliked it. It was an amazing movie, and most of us were well aware of the legal dispute between Warren Beatty who played 'Dick Tracy', and the studio Tribune Media. The studio had originally told Beatty that he had until 2008 to make another Dick Tracy movie or tv show and Beatty responded by making a tv-special. Well that wasn't good enough for Tribune and they continued the court battle until now it's official, the rights stay with Warren Beatty giving him the right to make more movies or television shows based on the classic comic-strip character. And for those of you who aren't familiar with 'Dick Tracy' (Shame On You!), here's a brief description of the character. Dick Tracy is a police detective who is recognized for his trademark yellow fedora and trench coat. He

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Dustin03Comics/news/?a=33874&t=Is_Dick_Tracy_Heading_Back_To_The_Big_Screen