

Guy Ritchie helms a new action-packed adventure, following the world's most famous detective, Sherlock Holmes (Robert Downey Jr.), and his longtime trusted associate, Dr. Watson (Jude Law), as they match wits with their arch-nemesis, the criminal genius Moriarty (Jared Harris). The folks over at Collider.com had the pleasure of sitting down with actor Jared Harris who plays the villainous mastermind Moriarty in the upcoming Guy Ritchie directed sequel to Sherlock Holmes titled Sherlock Holmes: A Game of Shadows. Harris discusses his preparation for the role, the pressure that comes with playing such an iconic character, and just how much of an evil villain Moriarty thinks he is in the film. When you're playing a character like that, that is so iconic, how much pressure to you put on yourself to research and to look at all the ways that it's been played in the past? Or do you sort of stay away from

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Dustin03Comics/news/?a=39935&t=Jared_Harris_Talks_ISherlock_Holmes_A_Game_Of_Shadows