

There may have been points in both these patriotic characters histories where they've turned their back on their beloved USA for whatever reason, but there's no doubting the fact that both Captain America and Superman each represent some of the greatest aspects of the country they so proudly call their own! Captain America fought for America during World War II and many years later once again took on that responsibility when he was awoken in the present day. Superman, an alien from the doomed planet Krypton, crashed in Kansas and was brought up by his adoptive parent to fight for, "Truth, Justice and the American way!" While both superheroes may be linked to America, they each also protect the world as a whole, and many argue that Superman in particular represents the good in all of us, rather than just a singular country. The same of course could be said for
