

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=27550&t=Possible_Production_Schedule_For_iSuperman_Reboot_Story_Details_Hinted_At

All we know so far for certain about the Superman reboot is that it will be directed by Zack Snyder, mentored by Chris Nolan and will most likely shoot scenes in Vancouver. The movie is expected to be released "Holiday 2012". There have been rumors and speculation on the plot, villains etc but nothing concrete. Well, neither is this! But the following was sent to Collider and they think it's quite possibly the real deal.. Principle Photography begins 22 August 2011 and shooting will run until April 2012. "Superman" will enter Post-Production May 1, 2012 and will continue until November 2012 set for release in Mid-December 2012 (14th – 21st) [Date still TBC]. Principle Photography will start in [Location TBC] which will act as "Smallville" and will film for about 40 days for 4 scenes: [HOMECOMING], [FUTURE DISCUSSION], [SHIP DISCOVERY] and [FUNERAL]. Filming will then move to [Location TBC] where the majority of