Check out some excerpts from the interview: IGN TV: So, we last left Lois, Clark and a whole bunch of superheroes in a very strange situation, where, presumably, they may be in big trouble. Anything you can say about what happens next? Erica Durance: They did a really great job of finding a way to bring Chloe [Allison Mack] back in. All our heroes have been knocked out and I don't want to give away too much, but we find out there's a whole interplay where Chloe gets to step into the role of the hero. And there's a whole scenario of what's real, what's not real and then Lois gets to actually step into her role of being the person that Clark starts to really trust with who he is and what he can do and really becomes quite a central figure. IGN: Things are really moving quickly on the
