

The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles are coming back with a bang next yer. Not only is a new live action movie in the works, but Nickelodeon is airing a brand new animated series too. And EW have the skinny of who will be providing the voices for those lean green fighting machines.. Sean Astin (Lord of the Rings' Sam, The Goonies' Mikey, and Rudy's Rudy) will be voicing red-masked Raphael. He'll be joined by a cast that includes Jason Biggs as Leonardo, Greg Cipes as Michelangelo, and Rob Paulsen as Donatello. The series will be executive produced by Ciro Neli, Joshua Sternin and Jeffrey Ventimilia, and is currently set to debut in Fall 2012, although select fans can get an exclusive first look at the reimagined Turtles at the upcoming San Diego Comic-Con. Interestingly, Paulsen voiced Raphael in the original cartoon. EW also have an interview with Astin, here are some excerpts.. ENTERTAINMENT

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=39408&title=Teenage_Mutant_Ninja_Turtles_Voice_Cast_Includes_Sean_Astin_Jason_Biggs