

The line segregating real life from the that which is lived in cyberspace seems to suffer from constant erosion. With social media apps weaving together so many facets of our virtual and real lives, society is coming to an event horizon beyond which the two simply must merge. With any such undiscovered country, unforeseen consequences are bound to arise...

Read more: http://www.mania.com/comicscape-real-life_article_140567.html