

There's a reason comic fans clamor for more Paul Pope. Lately he's been on a roll with a series of graphic novels from First Second, breathing life into the world of Arcopolis. Each release follows a separate character from a universe where monsters are real, dangerous, and steal children. Only a small handful of self appointed heroes stand between a tide of terror and sadness. The setup sucks you in, the execution is solid...

Read more: http://www.mania.com/comicscape-rise-aurora-west_article_140500.html