

Some stories are told through narrative flow, and through the movement of their characters through the arc of a plot line. Far fewer blossom on the page as visual tour de forces of imagery, throwing off the shackles of conventional storytelling for something far more esoteric. These more imaginative styles of fiction, even when they're relying almost completely on evoking emotion through imagery...

Read more: http://www.mania.com/comicscape-wrenchies_article_140293.html