

Ever since Darren Aronofsky dropped out of The Wolverine two months ago, the comic fandom has been wondering when 20th Century Fox would find a replacement and who it would be. Or whether the production would even move forward anytime soon. Well, let's step through doors number one and two, with Variety reporting a short list of candidates that are reportedly in the running to lead the action adventure...

Read more: http://www.mania.com/wolverine-director-search-continues_article_130004.html